

Kindred of Glasgow,

Unfortunately this missive brings sad tidings. Prince Levi Tius has met his final death at the hands of the Sabbat. It seems that a Black Hand kill team ambushed a coterie of Glasgow Kindred engaged in a search and destroy mission against them. Despite valiant efforts from Doyle, Primrose, and Sheriff Riley, Tius was killed before the Black Hand withdrew. The Keeper of the Masquerade has taken steps to cover up any potential breaches of the Masquerade.

But the Camarilla endures. And in enduring, requires a new Prince to rule the Domain as soon as possible. To stifle any gossip, I have no interest in being Prince of Glasgow. But Glasgow needs a Prince and there are most likely several candidates. I have no issue with political discourse, assassination, or duels, etc. But I won't stand for mass brawls and utter carnage at our next gathering.

The wolves are at the door. The Black Hand are carrying out a campaign of terror and murder against us. London and Edinburgh will be vying for ownership of Glasgow. Toreador France have their eyes turned on Ventrue Britain. Caitiff have set up on our doorstep. The Anarchs are stirring down south and across the water. The Garou rise to the north. Spirits are causing havoc in the Domain after the destruction of the demon. If the choosing of a new Prince descends into a shitshow, I will be putting an end to it in such a manner that the Sabbat in Spain will tell scare stories about it to their Childer and their Childer's Childer.

God help you all if you force me to be Prince of Glasgow again.

And congratulations to Prince Leslie of Aberdeen for incorporating Dundee back into his Domain. The late Prince Tius has left a startling legacy in his cooperation with Inverness to address the historic wrongs carried out by the Kindred of Dundee. Including the execution of Sheriff Hector Rozalees of Dundee for the murder of the Harpy of Inverness.

War has broken out in the British Isles once again. But this time it's not a siege from the dread sect, it's not ghastly beings from other places bent on unleashing hell. It's Camarilla Vs Camarilla. Inverness and Glasgow invaded the Toreador domain of Dundee.

Prince Tius, of Glasgow unleashed his Tremere magics to brutal effect, directed by the tactics and strategies of the Scourge of Spain. The Gangrel Prince of Inverness led his soldiers (seamen?) to conduct a slaughter on Prince Carmichael's men and personal guard while his hired Glaswegian mercenaries went after the prize.

Sheriff Riley of Glasgow, a large and powerful Brujah brought the fight to the controversial Sheriff Hector and after a straight fight, the strength of the Brujah won out over the resilience of the corpse.

Frances O'Doyle reputedly took down a bevy of opponents with his blade and the potency of his blood. Including Sorin Toma the outcast Gangrel and Elder FrancisDuLac, the Ventrue Primogen. Both of which have not been heard from since that night and the Dark Times are looking into their fate.

The magics of Prince Tius and his understudy Primrose dumbfounded and distracted any sort of meaningful resistance. And in a turn up for the books, it is still surely smarting the Toreador Elder Lady Darnley, when the Tremere used his powers of love on her, it has been claimed. Darnley, famed for her powers of presence, was brought low by Tius being quicker off the draw and causing her to fall to his charms. Then being levitated to uselessness by Tius as Primrose used her powers to cause panic among the Court of Dundee and incapacitating the Toreador lady, Ada Meadows.

The most terrifying sight of the night was the lovers quarrel to end all lovers quarrels. Angus McDonald and Viola Du Bois. Both elders clashed like titans and were effectively neutralised in the fight, something Carmichael would have been happy for if it were not for the fall of his other great power, Darnley.

The fighting occurred inside Caird Hall, with initial claims of it being a heinous breach of the Pax Vampirica. However those claims were quickly debunked. It is an occasional Elysium Site, but had not been designated as so for the evening's festivities.

In the end Carmichael was forced to yield. Glasgow claimed the spoils, and in interesting turn of events immediately awarded the domain to Prince Lesley of Aberdeen who was cruelly denied the domain in a conclave some years ago. Perhaps this is Tius' diplomatically redressing the balance or perhaps this is Leslie reward for coordinating behind the scenes. The only confirmed final death was that of Elder Hector Rozalees the Sheriff of Dundee, the only Samedi in the British Isles, and veteran of the retaking of Dundee from the Sabbat.

He was executed for his involvement in the destruction of Morag Cunningham the Harpy of Inverness.

There have been a cacophony of calls denouncing the actions of the aggressors. The harmony and relatively peaceful accord the Scottish princes have enjoyed is ruined, or on the other hand, the two armed camps that have formed in this war for the Scottish crown have finally drawn first blood.

Other observers have noted that the actions are indeed legitimate. Precedent set in the ages of warring princes, to the victor go the spoils. Also, experts have pointed to the presence of high level agents such as Shitty Pete of Clan Nosferatu, Infiltrator extraordinaire and last known to be operating in Spain against the Sabbat, and Viola Du Bois, the Darling of Paris adn Childe of Prince Francois Villon. From which, surely, we must conclude that it was a case of 'do it to them, before they do it to us.'

Whatever the case, ramifications of this night will send shockwaves through the months and years to come, across the domains of the Isles.

Might Makes Right.

Nice speech. Sorry for interrupting it. Although I hear that's not the first time. Gala? I've had fancier apples. You really are struggling. It was amusing. But I hope you really got our message. The clan of philosopher kings really are finished with the tawdry, most overrated, admittedly hardest to kill member of the clan of boring kings.

Charlie Oldsworth. You are no friend of the Brujah. And all now know. One night, your head will finally land on a spike!

Harpy Corner

Ann Jacques (York) - King of Scotland?Ha. Can't even keep his little prince in a job.

Sarah Miles (Birmingham) - It's quite pathetic really, how they squabble and argue and fuss. Such a din. Best be careful, cause if they ruin another gala reception they will be out in the ear.

Lucretia Reflection (Manchester) - After all he has done here. He really thought he would be welcome. Ha. Don't make us laugh.

Lady Salisbury (London) - 'The events North of the border are quite shocking. However, perhaps that will encourage those across the channel to leave well alone.

Carl (Norfolk) - The recent events in Dundee are about to be massively overshadowed.

Ryan Harding (Severn) - We look to the conflict in the domains of Inverness and Dundee and call for peace, we should have an inquest to make sure our ancient traditions and customs have been adhered too.

Katie Redding (Exile) - It wasn't long ago we extended the hand of friendship and welcome to Glasgow. How times change. It shall be remembered.

Dougal Douglas (Aberdeen) - Well. That was a turn of events. We are glad the bloodshed was light.

David Griene (Inverness) - It was only February that poor Morag Declared it would be that horrors funeral. And by God she was right. Good bye and good riddance.

Dianne Duncan (Carlisle) - Carlisle is a safe space for any displaced Kindred from the terrible blood shed in the Highlands.

Farr (Edinburgh) - Prince Carlisle is saddened to see politics dip to such low, debased acts. Let's all take a moment before we go past the point of no return.

Primrose (Glasgow) - I had heard the Prince in the East was a little wet, but one little chandelier drop and he's surrendering his city? Enjoy your retirement your highness.
