

Where do you stand?

These days, I've got a lot people asking me where I stand. Princes, Lords and Ladies, childer and elders, Anarchs and Brujah. Seems when you become a Prince people become very interested in your opinon. I'll tell you where I stand...

I stand over the ashes of a dead Black Hand assassin. She was a fine Assamite warrior but she stood against the court of Glasgow, she wont be doing that again. I stand over the Lasombra I punched out of his shoes with a single blow. He scuttled back under the rock he came from but we'll see him soon enough. They came here looking to start a war, they weren't ready for the one we gave them.

I stand with Prince Carlisle and his Domain. The Sabbat tried to create a war between us. In Scotland we are familliar with devide and rule so their wee ruse didnt manage much. Glasgow and Edinburgh stand together against the Sabbat and against any other forces who wish us harm...forces that should know better.

I stand with my fellow Camarilla Princes. Our enemies are trying very very hard to devide and conquer, we are smarter than that. Only by cooperation can we kill this enemy. So hear my words; take up your weapons, talk to each other, work together and lets put these childer to bed.

I stand with Clan Brujah, real Brujah, Loyal Brujah. I stand with Leon. If it wasn't for me Leon wouldn't be standing anymore. In fact, if yer auld Da handn't sorted this for you, Leon would be dead and so would a lot more of you. Dont stand with Brujah who shit talk people in public but then send their wee aprentices to beg yer auld Da for my help. Dont presume to question my decisions, look at my results. If you want my support you can ask me to my face. In the mean time do yer fuckin job and kill some Sabbat.

A very merry Christmas to you all

Francis Doyle,
Prince of Glasgow
Clan Brujah

Anarchs of Liverpool,

You were warned.

Angus McDonald,
Regent of Orkney.

Kindred of Britain,

I want to spotlight the atrocities committed against myself and my fellow Anarchs in our Domain of Liverpool only a few weeks ago.

Not only was our Domain invaded by an outsider in the form of the supposed Elder, Angus McDonald, but he threatened the rightful Baron of Liverpool.

He threatened all of the Anarchs present actually! The Baron was well within his rights to stop his conversation with the vile animal McDonald and was also well within his rights to order him killed for his cheek! Rather than shutting up and running away like a good Cammie should, McDonald slaughtered over a dozen of my friends! Including the Baron of Liverpool! And that was after the Baron decided to be the bigger man and just walk away!

Angus McDonald should be executed for his actions in murdering innocent Anarchs in their own Domain. He is a monster and an animal and he should have died in Spain. He couldn't even do that right!

The Anarchs demand justice for McDonald's crimes. When we go back to Liverpool we will see who is laughing then!

Esther Valance,
Exiled in Belfast.

Jack,
Scourge of Glasgow

Kindred of Britain,

I hereby announce that Liverpool has been reunited with Manchester as a Domain under the aegis of the Camarilla once again, as is right and proper.

As always, Anarchs are welcome in my Domain, but I will not tolerate the violent uprisings and vicious attacks against members of my Court. I will continue to uphold the Traditions in my Domain and I extend the hand of friendship to both the Anarchs and Camarilla Kindred who have recently left the Domain and who may wish to return.

My thanks again to Elder Angus McDonald for his vital assistance in stabilising my Domain during his recent visit. This internecine strife only aids our enemies in these times of active war.

Eloise Kane,
Prince of Manchester and Liverpool.

A shocking chain of events

Rage-fuelled decision making has lead to a series of wild events in Manchester this month. Completely outraged by the failings of Prince Doyle of Glasgow to punish the utterly despised long-term enemy of Clan Brujah, Rosina Giovanni, while he had her entirely in his power for a breach of the Promise of 1528, the Brujah Prince of Manchester (7th October 2018 - 22nd October 2018) Frank 'Franko' Black took matters into his own hands to dispense justice.

After a widely publicised attack on Doyle's reputation, Black decided to ensure that justice was enacted on the now exiled Giovanni. Finding that his week long stint as Prince of Manchester didn't increase his reach or influence to affect any matters in Venice, new home of Miss Giovanni, Prince Black called on a unique method of assassination... the Followers of Set...

Who knows the full payment required by the Setites for this foul deed? What we DO know is that the Prince granted leave for the Setites to establish a permanent Temple in Manchester for a period of 100 years and a day, to be ran without interference from the Camarilla, in return for "ripping the fucking heart out of that bastard Giovanni woman".

Two bits of wise advice from my Sire spring immediately to mind: never make a decision in anger; and never make a deal with a Setite.

Advice poor Prince Black obviously hadn't heard before.

Reports from our Italian correspondent say that Rosina Giovanni was indeed attacked in Venice and did indeed suffer her heart to be removed from her chest. Unfortunately, this failed to kill her and she was seen walking around for several days after her attack before suddenly going rigid and unresponsive, as if staked.

And while the Setites have benefited from their new Temple and foothold in Britain, while avoiding the ire of the Giovanni by not destroying a family member, carrying out the exact terms of their contract, and gaining leverage over Clan Giovanni, the Prince of Manchester received absolutely nothing that he wanted and instead was torn to pieces, literally, by his Clanmates in Manchester. Eloise Kane happily stepped into the role of Prince but is now dealing with the fallout of her predecessors ill-advised decisions.

Who knows what further events will transpire during this chaotic time? What we do know is that certain parties, Prince Kane and the Setites as particular examples, are more than ready to seize opportunity from the chaos and advance their goals and agendas.

Floating Tidal Turbine Off Orkney Islands Smashes Generation Records!

A floating tidal turbine has smashed generation records in Scotland, matching the generation capacity of offshore wind turbines. The SR2000, designed by Scotrenewables Tidal Power, is the world's largest and most powerful tidal device.

The machine is currently undergoing grid-connected testing, which saw it generate 18 MWh over a 24-hour period. This represents a serious step forward for tidal energy, which could soon become a viable renewable technology.

The SR2000 is the culmination of years of design. The company behind the turbine, Scotrenewables Tidal Power, is based in the Orkney Islands off the coast of Scotland and has spent 12 years developing the device, aiming to create a low-cost generator with financial backing from the Scottish government and a number of private investors.

The turbine is composed of a floating hull, with two turbines on the lower half of the body which sit just below the sea surface, the prime position for harnessing the energy of tidal flows. The turbines are also designed to fold upwards into the hull of the generator, which reduces transportation costs.

The machine has been designed to perform in areas with fast tidal flows, such as Scotland and Canada, but can be calibrated to perform in areas with softer breaks. The machine is undergoing testing in the Orkney Islands, Also home to the European Marine Energy Centre, which operates state-of-the-art testing facilities for tidal and wave energy installations. This, combined with the natural tidal currents around the archipelago and its connection to the Scottish electrical grid, make the Orkneys particularly suited to the tidal energy industry.

By working alongside the EMEC, Scotrenewables is hopeful that it can establish the SR2000 as the hallmark technology in the tidal energy industry. Tidal energy is an underused resource, and estimates indicate that globally it could generate as much as 160 TWh per year.

In the UK alone, there are more than 30 areas where tidal generators could contribute to the UK's energy mix; internationally, there are dozens of countries where tidal energy is viable. With more than a decade of research and development behind the project, the Scotrenewables floating turbine is at the cutting edge of tidal technology and is showing promise for the industry in the years ahead.

This has reached GREEN AND BLUE on the Manatee meter for renewable marine energy!

Right on guy's! Glasgow if this does not motivate you to seek change in yourself by living in harmony with the world we share that's currently killing our food source, tell me then what will make you seek change?

Scotrenewables we salute you for your endeavours!

Come along and be part of the change!

My friends,

Be careful while travelling around Europe in the near future. The city-states of Greece are going to war once again... What started off as a continuance of border raiding between the Ventruue Prince Hesperos of Athens and the Brujah Prince Galatea of Thebes. This has caused the web of treaties and boons between all of these Princes to come into play in an escalating series of engagements throughout Greece.

The Brujah Prince Parmenion of Sparta has attacked Corinth, ruled by the Toreador Prince Pangiota, to support Thebes. Aegina, under Prince Nectarios has rushed to defend a fellow Toreador Prince by besieging Argos and it's longstanding Nosferatu Prince, Nestor Zaceus. The city-state of Rhodes, ruled by the fierce Gangrel Prince Nikos Vernandos has rushed to the aid of Argos by attacking boyh Aegina and Crete, ruled by the ancient Toreador Prince Adonia Alexios. Crete has used the opportunity to attempt to deal with longstanding rival Syracuse under Prince Seraphim Vasileios., who has send forces to assassinate Prince Hesperos of Athens. All in all, Greece is descending yet again into another shitshow that makes travelling dangerous and the hospitality of it's Prince's to border on paranoia of spies in their Domains.

I have also heard rumours that the powerful Brujah Methuselah Guillaume has awoken in Switzerland and is moving against the Ventrue there and lossening their control of the banks. Who knows what their reply will be? By all accounts, Guillaume is declaring himself Prince of Switzerland. The Ventrue Princes of Geneva and Bern seem to be the main targets of Guillaume's ire. I journey now to Zurich to visit my Sire's good friend Caliph Ibn Rashid, the Assamite Prince of the city. I hope to have a clearer picture of the going's on in Switzerland by next month.

If I survive escaping Greece that is...

Your friend,
Torsten McKenzie.

Twigy wiggy horoscope!

Ventrue:

Today is the day for a new suite and a new you! Why not go out and brake in some Italians! But be weary of the cat with three legs... it will mean trouble.

Assamite:

So it's been a hard week of assassinations and you are hungry! But be careful! This month shows that blood may be a bit harder to grab. Why not keep it chill and stay at home instead of killing?

Tremere:

So picture the scene, your out on the town and your just doing your magic voodoo thing. When BLAM! a egg hits you. BEWARE! Not all chickens are content with the current political state, tread carefully and watch what you say!

Lasombra:

One of your shadow tentacles will gain a sort of sentience this month. Look after him treat him with love and affection and they will do tentacle things... there name is Alex.

Malkavian:

Ten centuries shall the fortress stand
Walls of spirit wrapped in walls of fire
And horned lords shall bowl their head
To one not yet born, of the darkest sire
One century of blood and strife
The moon shall darken, and none know why
The resting place at last is found
Of the Seventh, who soared so high
Last daughter of a forlorn line
Shall guide him into history
Beneath the crypts prophecies clash
The war of ancient enemies.

Brujah:

If you find the time this month to stop bashing things and smell the roses, you mite find your eyes locking with someone you never really thought about before.
Love is in the air for you stompys.

Toreador:

Your affections like a shotgun blast will catch the wrong type of people this month. Try not to put your dick in crazy, that's what ya mam always said. Well you went an did it anyway.

Nosferatu:

A golden duck will pass you, grab it, hold it, covet it!
Only then will you know the true way to armadillo.

Gangrel:

Lick it...
DO IT!

Ravnos:

Something from your past will come bite you in the ass... better keep that hunger in check me lovleies...

Ann Jacques (York) - the Scots seem to be revolting. No change there then.

Sarah Miles (Birmingham) - Everyone bask in the majesty that is the mercy of Prince Aldworth. Having an attempt on his unlife made seen past the urge to take that back in vengeance and grant clemency to the wretch.

Lucretia Reflection (Manchester) - Prince Kane will be holding a series of hearings where the testimony of any and all will be heard over the events of the last several months. An open forum to correct and address wrongs against Camarilla, proper, and Anarchs.

Lady Salisbury (London) - in the darkest winter, December month, we have it on good authority that the Inner Council of the Camarilla will be meeting.

Carl (Norfolk) – apparently Venice is a bit shakey this time of year. Maybe they will meet elsewhere.

Ryan Harding (Severn) - champions from across the Camarilla are interested in this tournie. A feast shall be organised. A hunt will be put on and all will be cheered forever.

Dougal Douglas (Aberdeen) - Tge southern softies are all ganging up on someone. As long as you keep your eyes south and don't get any High ideas.

David Griene (Inverness) - these long nights really are great. You can just walk down through the cities, the lights and amongst the humanity. It's really rather wonderful. Merry Christmas.

Dianne Duncan (Carlisle) - the Sabbat didn't kill Prince Tius.

Farr (Edinburgh) - it was all a terrible misunderstanding. Shocking. But that's it all squared away. The good Prince of Glasgow has joined with Prince Carlisle of Edinburgh in an alliance to stave off all comers.
