

Glasgow

The Dark Times

Nov 2025

Dear Kindred,

Today, I find myself writing an article I never thought I'd have to!

Using your powers, to influence animals or others, to pull an All Hallow's Eve prank on a domain is not amusing in any circumstance but especially when you are new to the discipline and do not have a way to stop it if things go too far!

Some of you may have seen in the Kine news, an article about a pack of wolves wreaking havoc in the Trossachs. Strange place for wolves to be I thought but went to investigate as is my duty. It turns out these wolves had not escaped from the wildlife park of their own volition but instead had been influenced to head south for more populated areas and go wild.

We Kindred live carefully to protect the masquerade and it can be a bit of a balancing act to maintain the Kine population while also feeding off them. Kine are feeble and die easily of their own creations such as illness, accidents, etc everyday so we should probably not be intentionally pulling pranks to diminish the population even quicker. Perhaps I am wrong in that, but it seems silly to put a toilet in a kitchen so to speak.

How was this a potential masquerade breach you ask? Well wolves aren't generally found in Kine towns and wolves aren't in the habit of opening gates by themselves. Oh yes, there was CCTV in the park which had not been turned off before-hand, deleted or tampered with any way. A Police investigation would have left so many question marks and licence plates can be tracked. There are so many other ways this was badly done that I think even Inspector Clouseau could have worked it out. It honestly was like something out a kindred farce.

I have tracked down the culprits of this "prank" and they have been dealt with, but I felt it prudent to give advice to any other neonates, fledglings or Kindred that, in Glasgow domain, such potential masquerade breaches will not be tolerated! I am not going to deny this is something that a lot of you probably would have expected past me to do, but there we go and some of you may find this funny; but it could have been disastrous with far more bloodshed, carnage and damage to the domain.

Elder Kenzie Lex

Scourge of Glasgow Domain

From the desk of Corporal Draven Southsea

Gloves off

A minor boon to my fellow kindred for allowing me the use of his glove at last court, i wore it hoping for a burst of energy and it did not disappoint, I played around with it a bit and i got lucky when playing dice, winning several games before switching it off, I have to say that I think it may be faulty as it leaked a strange sticky purple residue onto my arm which looked a lot like a bruise, (i was told it was oil) but i am just glad it didnt do any damage, next time i will be a lot more cautious when handling items like this, i really should have inspected it more thoroughly, suffice to say 'the glove is off'.

What new ventures will bring the night? I wonder.

Alex Caimbeul.

Seeking

Purveyor of Fine Art, in-depth knowledge of art history a must. If interested contact Sir Douglas.

Emergency transport services available

Found yourself far from your haven with sunrise approaching too soon to get back in time?

Need to discreetly leave a location without attracting attention from prying eyes?

One call and I will gladly provide inconspicuous transport, for a reasonable fee.

Transport within the Domain of Glasgow: 1 trivial boon.

Transport to adjacent Domains (example Oban): 1 minor boon

Transport to further Domains (example London): 1 Major boon.

Leaving the British Isles with a vehicle is not permitted.

Users are responsible for providing their own driver after delivery.

Users are responsible for gaining permission to enter/transit through foreign Domains.

Users causing a vehicle to be damaged or a delivery driver to be endangered during delivery will be subject to a surcharge of at least 1 Major boon.

Users will be responsible for making sure the vehicle is returned to a designated drop off point on schedule, unreasonable tardiness will result in a surcharge of at least 1 Trivial boon.

If services are required call: [number]